

The Birth of Language in South Asia

First Indians

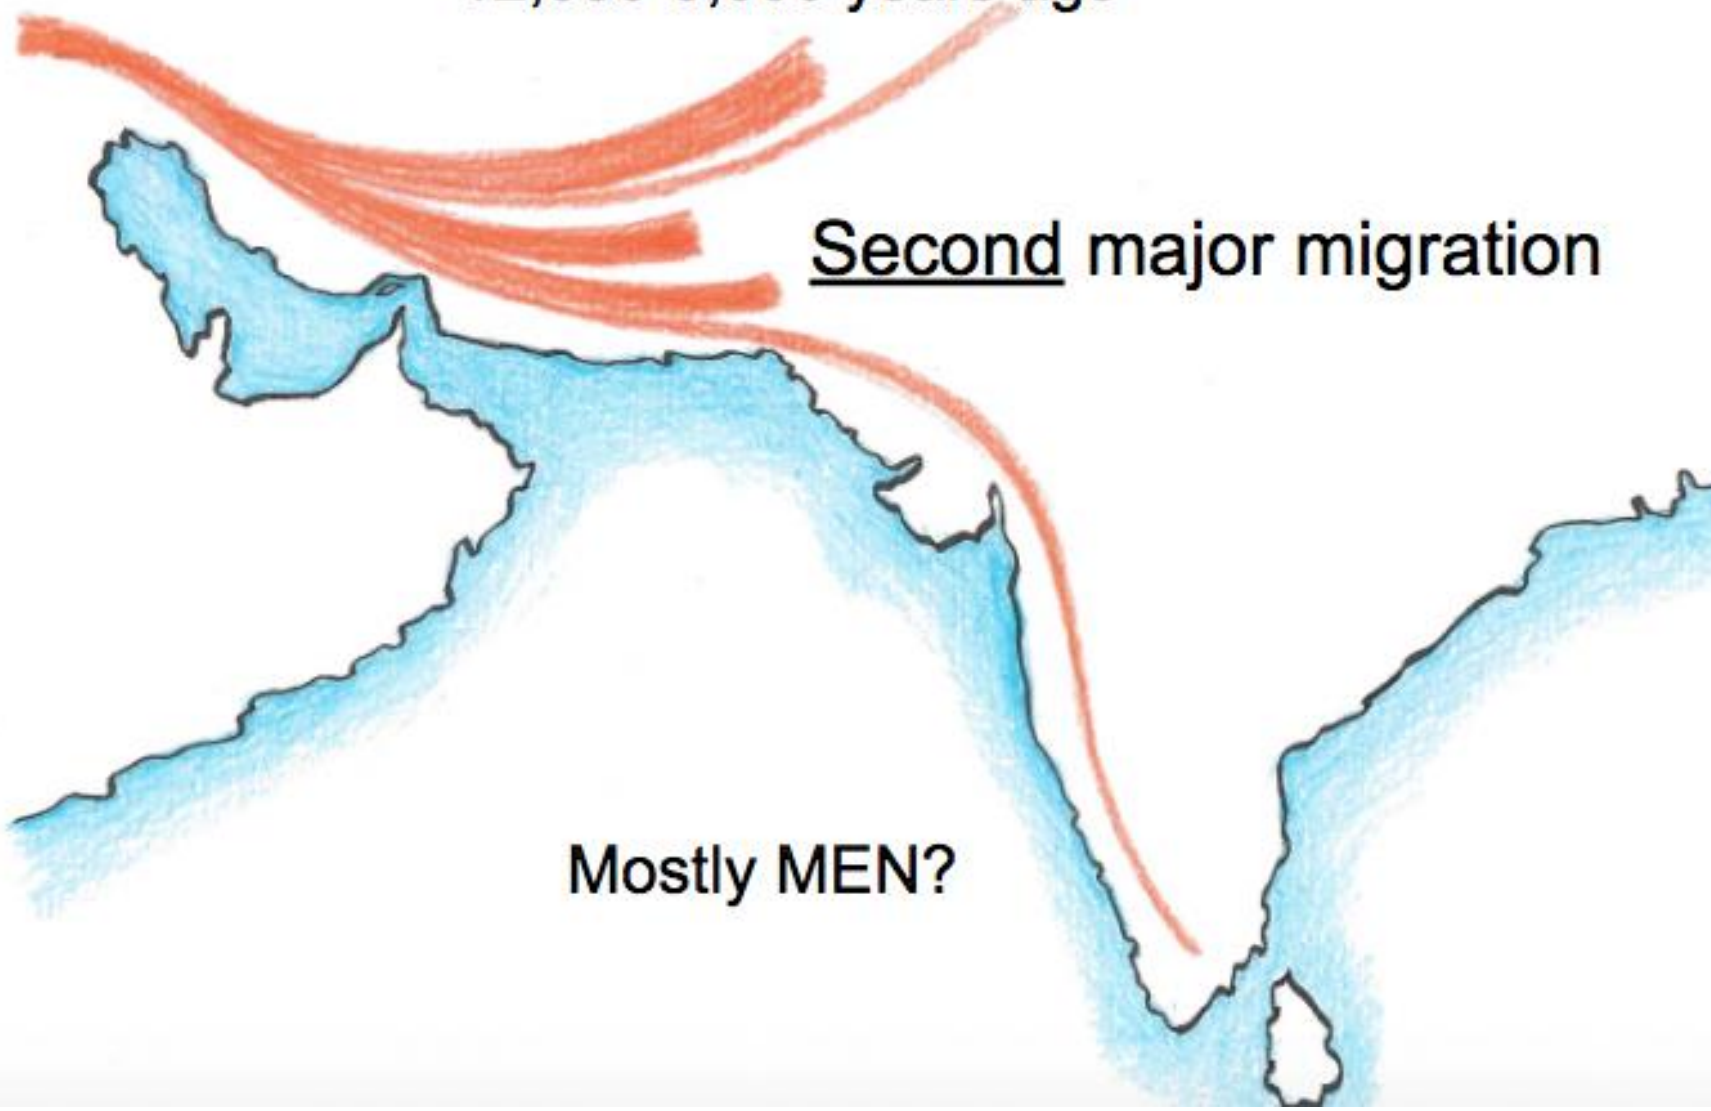

Out of Africa
70,000 years ago
hunter-gatherers

MEN and WOMEN

'IRANIAN FARMERS'
12,000-9,000 years ago

Second major migration

Mostly MEN?

??

Piecing together the historical EVIDENCE

4000+ years ago?

from LINGUISTIC MODELS and LANGUAGE DATA

VOCABULARY from PATERNAL SIDE
(SUPERSTRATUM)
‘father tongue’

GRAMMAR from MATERNAL SIDE
(SUBSTRATUM)
‘motherland’

MATRIX)

Migrant FATHERS

+

Local MOTHERS

all languages of migrating male groups would have a substratum from the
WOMEN'S LANGUAGES

(including Hunza Burushaski, a 'language isolate')

INDUS VALLEY LANGUAGES

SANSKRIT PRAKRITS

INDUS VALLEY LANGUAGES WITH PRAKRIT VOCABULARY

‘INDO-ARYAN’ CREOLE LANGUAGES

INDUS VALLEY LANGUAGE
SUBSTRATUM
(OPERATING SYSTEM)

Around the 12th CENTURY

To find LANGUAGE X

Identify FEATURES
(in sound system, grammar)

What FEATURES in the Indo-Aryan languages do NOT come from Sanskrit/prakrits?

How do they compare with FEATURES in other languages outside the Indus Valley Periphery?

SOUNDS

RETROFLEXION

ṭ ḍ ṇ ḷ ṣ

ASPIRATION

kh ćh ṭh th ph
gh jh ḍh dh bh

The Vocal Tract

ट t त

RETROFLEXION

South Asian RETROFLEXION ZONE

RETROFLEX SOUNDS in IVC Periphery

Languages

Punjabi:	ṭ	ḍ	ṛ	ṇ	ḷ
Sindhi:	ṭ	ḍ	ṛ	ṇ		ṣ
Balochi:	ṭ	ḍ	(ṛ)
Pashto:	ṭ	ḍ	ṛ	ṇ		ṣ	ṭṣ ḍṛ
Burushaski:	ṭ	ḍ				ṣ	ṭṣ ḍṛ
Brahui:	ṭ	ḍ	ṛ	ṇ
Sanskrit	ṭ	ḍ

FUN FACT:

Places with RETROFLEXION

OLDER than DRAVIDIAN

Punjabi:	k kh g ʔ	ć ćh j ʔ	ṭ ṭh ḍ ʔ	t th d ʔ	p ph b ʔ
Sindhi:	k kh g ʔ	ć ćh j ʔ	ṭ ṭh ḍ ʔ	t th d ʔ	p ph b ʔ
Balochi:	k g	ć j	ṭ ḍ	t d	p b
Pashto:	k g	ć j	ṭ ḍ	t d	p b
Burushaski:	k kh g	ć ćh j	ṭ ṭh ḍ	t th d	p ph b
Brahui:	k kh g	ć j	ṭ ṭh ḍ	t th d	p ph b

No VOICED ASPIRATES at all

Areas without Voiced Aspirates:

1. Indus Valley Periphery

2. South India

3. The Tribal Northeast

4. Tibetan languages

GRAMMAR

CALQUES

Sentences ‘thought’ in one language
and expressed in|the words of another language

‘it is with me only’

Dakkhini: kaun bolā-ki us-ku pūccho

Telugu: ewaru annāru-o wāḍni aḍugu

Who said-ki/o to-him ask

‘Ask (the person) who said it’

Hindi-Urdu us-ko pūchho jisne yeh kahā

to-him ask who this said

‘Ask (the person) who said it’

The BIGGEST DIFFERENCE between

Northern Dravidian

and

Southern Dravidian

is

ERGATIVITY

ERGATIVITY (full)

By-me the cat OM-see-AM

‘I see the cat’

By-me the cat OM-will see-AM

‘I will see the cat’

By-me the cat OM-saw-AM

‘I saw the cat’

ERGATIVITY (split)

I the cat see-SM

‘I see the cat’

I the cat will see-SM

‘I will see the cat’

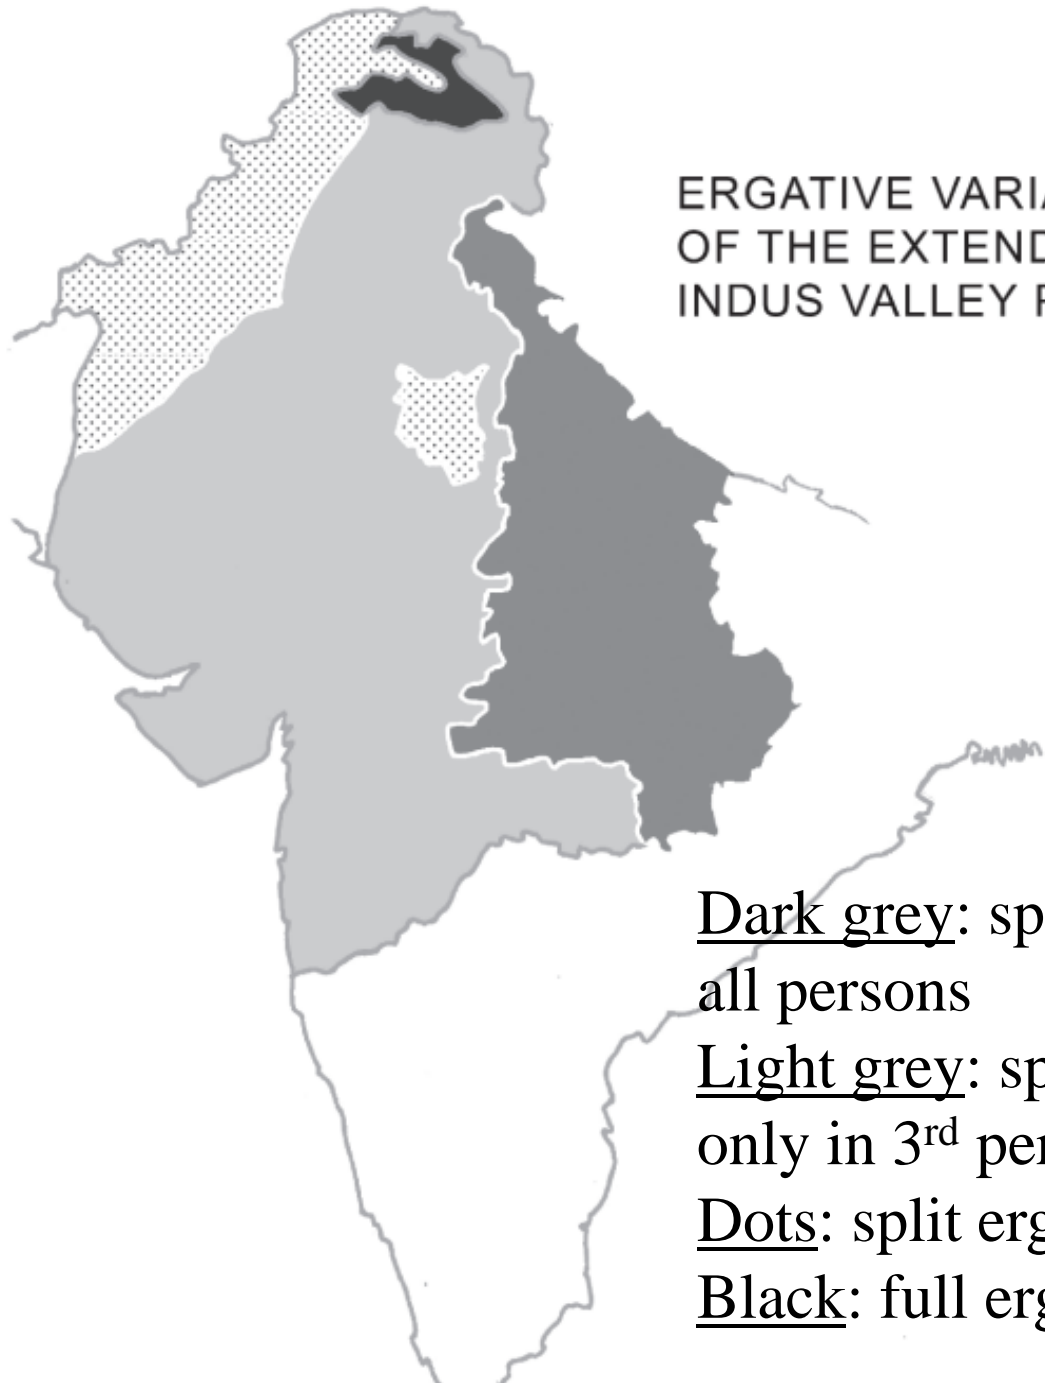

I the cat was seeing-SM

‘I was seeing the cat’

By-me the cat seen-OM

‘I saw the cat’

ERGATIVE VARIANTS
OF THE EXTENDED
INDUS VALLEY PERIPHERY

VARIETY as a sign of a CENTRE OF ORIGIN

Dark grey: split ergativity in past tense, ergative marking on agent, all persons

Light grey: split ergativity in past tense, ergative marking on agent only in 3rd person

Dots: split ergativity in past tense, with NO ergative marking

Black: full ergativity in ALL tenses, ergative marking on agent

NATURAL GENDER in the FAR NORTH, DRAVIDIAN SOUTH, NEPAL

Small black at top: 4 natural genders, verb agreement

Dark grey: 3 grammatical genders, verb and adjective agreement

Light grey: 2 grammatical genders, verb and adjective agreement

Dots: 3 natural genders, he/she/it, verb agreement

Stripes: 2 natural genders, verb and adjective agreement

White: no gender, natural or grammatical

Hindi: ghar mẽ

Tamil: vīṭṭ il

Sanskrit: gr̥he

Hindi: khātā hai he eats
khātī hai she eats

Tamil: sāpiḍaran he eats
sāpiḍarā she eats
sāpiḍaḍi it eats

Sanskrit: khādāti he/she/it eats

FEATURES of LANGUAGE X

Full Retroflexion

Voiceless Aspirates

NO Voiced Aspirates

Full Ergativity

Natural Gender

Gender Agreement with Verbs

Object Marking

Postpositions

Geminate Consonants???

Dakkhini-style Subordinate Clauses???

Compound Verbs???

Dravidian Vowels???

Honorifics???

Copula Deletion???

Preference for NOUNS???

FULL ERGATIVITY in LANGUAGE X

No ERGATIVITY in Southern First Indian languages ???

No ERGATIVITY in Southern Dravidian languages

No ERGATIVITY in Dakkhini

Mundari:

Soma hon-ko lel-ko-ka-e?

Soma child-pl see-3pl.O-3sg:S-Ques

‘May Soma see the children?’

(ERGATIVITY-lite)

Santali:

(iñ) p-ea marañ gāi ñei-ket’-ko-a-ñ

I three big cow see-past-3pl.O-finite-1sg.S

‘I saw three big cows’

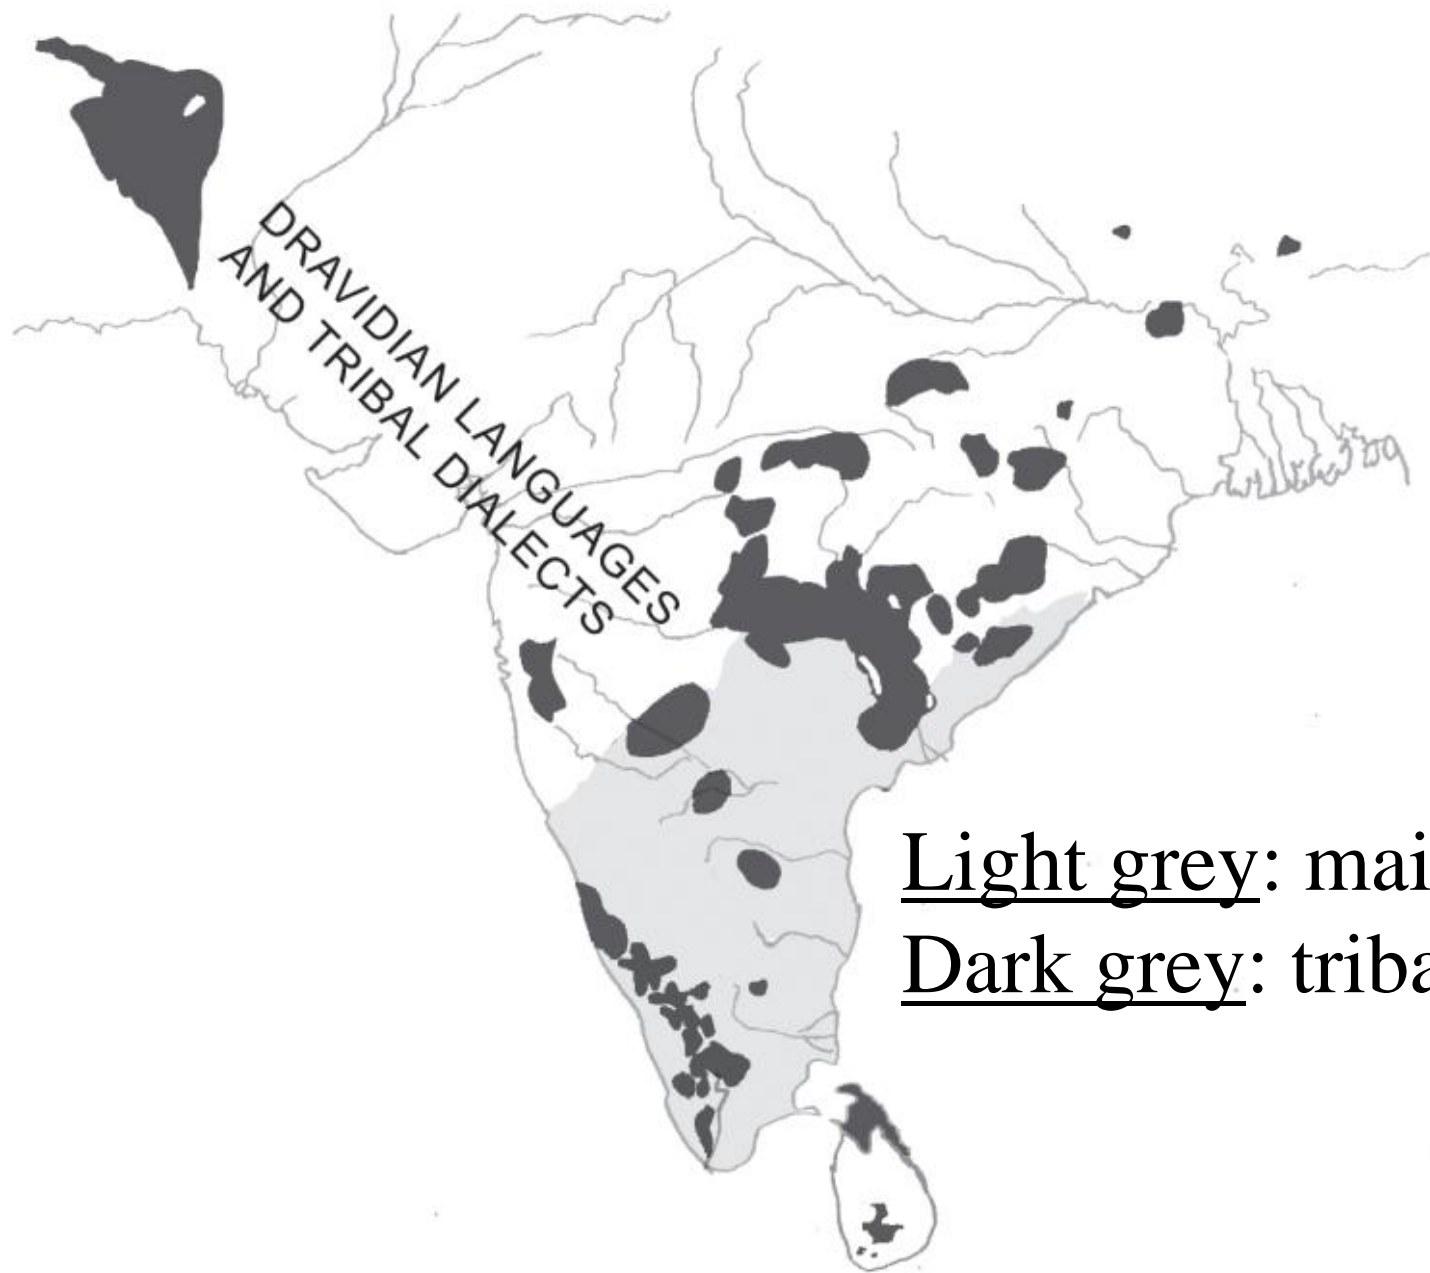

This DOUBLE MARKING, object as well as subject, is MISSING from the southern Munda languages

EARLY DAKKHINI

Light grey: mainstream Dravidian languages

Dark grey: tribal Dravidian languages

